Fine Purges Crowe From Group For Opposing Tax

Ousted From Interstate Committee

Sen. Montgomery F. Crowe disclosed during the week-end he had been "purged" from the Committee on Interstate Cooperation by Gov. John S. Fine.

"It's obviously a slap at me and especially my district because I was against, and voted against the Governor's State income tax," Crowe said last night.

The Monroe senator, a veteran of 14 years in the State Senate, stood firm, against the State income tax throughout the entire period of the long, tedious taxation battle of the 1951 session.

Absence of Senator Crowe from the Committee on Interstate Cooperation also remove him from service on Interstate Commission on the Delaware River Basin, he noted.

"My interest here is the interest of the people of my district in the Delaware River valley who have so much at stake in the INCODEL program," Senator Crowe said.

Three of the counties in Senator Crowe's district border on the Delaware — Monroe, Pike and Wayne—and a fourth is on the Lehigh-Delaware River watershed — Carbon County. He has been an official member of INCODEL throughout the development of the river project.

Crowe's place on the Committee on Interstate Cooperation has been given to Sen. John Meade, Philadelphia, a brother of William Meade, GOP chairman in Philadelphia.

The Stroudsburg senator said he first learned of his absence from the committee from Rep. Norman Wood, member of the House Appropriations committee and chairman of the committee.

Wood, he said, called him relative to an important Harrisburg meeting of eastern states regarding forest fire control. The gathering of State officials of North-eastern United States is scheduled for Thursday.

Wood, Crowe said, asked him to attend as secretary-treasurer of the committee because "you're the only one who knows what's involved here."

In his capacity as secretary-treasurer, Crowe has issued notices and generally set up various meetings of the Committee on Interstate Cooperation.

Aim of the body is to unify laws regulating traffic, forest fire control, highway safety truck and bus movements, etc. Headquarters are in Chicago with branch offices in New York, San Francisco and Washington, D. C.

Crowe has been a member of the body eight years, and had been chairman of the Eastern Highway Safety group covering states from New England to District of Columbia.

Five senators, five representatives, five members of the administration's cabinet make up the committee.

Manila (AP) — A Manila-bound train smashed into a stalled passenger bus in Bulacan province yesterday. Three bus passengers were killed and seven injured.

60 Seamen Believed Lost As Gales Lash North Sea

London, Monday, (AP)—Sixty seamen were feared lost in gales which swept the North sea over the weekend.

The body of one of the seamen, apparently frozen to death, was found in a lifeboat.

Search was abandoned early today in the storm-tossed waters around the Orkney islands for 17 crewmen from the 44-ton German trawler Thor which capsized in heavy seas.

One survivor of the Thor, First Mate Will Sunkymann, was picked up, unconscious and half frozen, by the German trawler Fladengrund.

"We ran into a gale," Sunkymann said after he was revived, "and after that it took no time to capsize. It happened so quickly our radio operator did not have time to send out even one S. O. S."

He said there were 11 survivors in his lifeboat, but they dropped

Reds Repeat Old Charges, Issue Threat

Munsan, Korea, Monday (AP) — The Reds talked tough at Sunday's armistice sessions, threatening to carry an issue "beyond the scope of the Korean question."

Another tense situation arose from the exchange across the green-topped table at Panmun-jom, but the delegates met briefly again today. They later adjourned and will meet again tomorrow.

The talks have now gone on for eight futile months.

The obscurely-worded Communist threats were voiced by North Korean Maj. Gen. Lee Sang Chul during the 33-minute session on exchange of prisoners. He repeated the old Red charge that the Allies were mistreating Communist prisoners, and added:

"If such lawless activities are not stopped immediately, their development will go beyond the scope of the Korean question."

Rear Adm. R. E. Libby replied promptly that "your statement is deliberate insult to the United Nations command and to the UNC delegation." He suggested that the Reds make known "what you intend by these threats."

40th Division In Battlezone

Seoul, Korea, Monday (AP)—The U. S. Eighth Army today disclosed that the 40th Division (California National Guard) had gone into action on the Korean battle line.

The division is holding a sector of the central front south of battered Kumsong. Units of the 40th had been identified in action previously.

At the same time the Eighth Army said the veteran U. S. 25th Division with its attached Turkish brigade now is holding down a battle line sector northwest of the punchbowl in eastern Korea.

Sporadic action flared across the peninsula Sunday. Most of the fights lasted only several minutes.

Fifth Air Force night fighters flew 80 combat missions. Pilots claimed eight locomotives and 10 boxcars destroyed or damaged and 33 supply trucks destroyed.

The Reds stepped up their mortar and artillery fire after a day of bad weather and poor visibility. Almost 1,500 rounds fell along the battle front. The heaviest concentration hit the 25th division sector.

off one by one. Only the dead sailor was found with Sunkymann. The Fladengrund was en route to Iceland.

Search continued from Norway for 18 crewmen of the 829-ton Finnish ship Adna which radioed she was sinking. All were believed lost.

In Scotland, the British Navy picked up an S. O. S. from the 1,253-ton Swedish ship Rosso with 24 aboard. Lifeboats spent 19 hours at sea searching for survivors, and a four-engined coastal command plane returned after a fruitless search.

Army Asks Unions To End Strike

Chicago, (AP)—A surprise strike of 5,500 railmen yesterday tied up train movements west of Buffalo on the 6,000-mile New York Central railroad system and the Army asked the unions to call off their walkout.

"National defense efforts demands there be no interruption" to traffic, Assistant Army Secretary Karl R. Bendetsen told the three striking unions, the engineers, firemen and conductors.

Bendetsen technically has been operating the railroads under government seizure since a previous strike which ended in August, 1950.

He told the unions that the Army and other governmental offices are considering what action to take if the strike continues or spreads.

The strike involves union demands for more money and management demands for working rule changes. The issues have been in dispute for nearly three years.

Bendetsen called the strike "unauthorized."

The unions are the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers, and the Order of Railway Conductors.

In addition to the vast NYC system, the strike shut down rail switching at St. Louis. The city is an important switching center for east-west traffic. About 500 engineers and firemen quit their posts at the Terminal Railroad Association of St. Louis. Also affected were the Michigan Central and the Big Four.

Heads of the striking Brotherhoods would not say whether the strike would be extended. They also would not speculate what they would do if the government should seek a court injunction to halt the walkout.

The union chiefs said "we'll have to await developments."

But their strike instructions said the orders would apply to "every other railroad to which the strike may be later developed."

A NYC spokesman called the walkout the worst paralysis in the railroad's history. Some 1,500 conductors and 3,500 firemen and engineers were involved.

The company said if the strike continues another day at least 30,000 more employees would be laid off.

In Washington, Justice department attorneys met with Army officers at the Pentagon to consider possible government steps to end the walkout. The Army operates the railroads for the government, which legally makes the rail workers government employees.

One move would be to get the injunctions.

The strike follows by little more than a year sporadic waves of "sickness" among switchmen. The absences tied up key lines for short periods in February, 1951.

The brotherhoods issued a statement critical of the nation's railroads. They termed Army control of the carriers a "legal fiction" and declared the administration "in Washington" more than a year ago "made itself a party to the controversy by injecting two new proposals into the dispute."

The strike involves union demands for more pay and company demands for working rule changes. This has been in dispute for nearly three years.

The walkout did not affect the NYC commuter service in the New York City area.

Football Star Dies In Crash

Columbia, S. C. (AP) — Steve Wadiak, all Southern conference halfback at the University of South Carolina the past two seasons, was killed in an auto accident yesterday.

Wadiak, Navy veteran and 24-year-old senior from Chicago, died in University hospital at Augusta, Ga., shortly after the car in which he was riding overturned five times near Aiken, S. C. Five others in the car were injured, none seriously.

Plane Belly Lands With Jammed Gear

Dayton, O. Monday (AP) — A private plane with five persons aboard belly landed safely at Dayton municipal airport at 12:19 a. m. today after circling the field for more than four hours with a jammed landing gear.

The two-motored Lockheed Lodestar skidded 500 feet on its belly, but stayed upright. There was no fire and no one was injured.

A crowd of about 1,000 persons sent up a big cheer when the plane stopped.

The pilot, Carl R. Siemer, of Cincinnati, had made two earlier attempts to land, but lifted the plane again each time when his one operating landing gear buckled.

A television station, WHIO-TV of Dayton, had cameras at the field taking films for later release.

Key Man In Dope Ring Still Sought

San Francisco (AP) — Federal agents pressing a hunt for three missing members of the alleged Wacey Gordon heroin ring said yesterday the ring's triggerman is "definitely on the lam."

They identified him as Robert L. Reynolds, 36-year-old St. Paul, Minn., ex-convict indicted Friday with 22 others as members of a giant coast-to-coast narcotics syndicate. Twenty of them are in custody or free on bail on the conspiracy indictment.

The other two still sought are John R. Phelps, 43, of Isleton, Calif., and Phoenix, Ariz., and Peter S. Haines, 55, Palo Alto, Calif., both asserted heroin distributors for the ring.

Miami, Fla. (AP) — Sid Gordon's three-run homer off Johnny Schmitz in the seventh inning made it easy sailing for the Boston Braves yesterday as they defeated the Brooklyn Dodgers for the second straight time, 6-2.

150 Police Assigned To Solve Schuster Slaying

New York, (AP)—The vicious slaying of the young man who fingered Willie (the Actor) Sutton aroused angry officials yesterday into an intense—but so far fruitless—search for his killers.

Arnold Schuster, the 24-year-old victim of the gangland type killing, was shot four times Saturday night on a dark Brooklyn street near his home.

The young clothing salesman had recognized the nation's ace bank robber and prison-breaker on Feb. 18 and told police, Sutton's capture followed.

A report yesterday—later discounted by the police—led to a renewed quest for a convict pal of Sutton who they were told was seen in Brooklyn hours before Schuster's death.

A bartender told authorities he saw a man who bore a resemblance to Frederick J. Tenuto, convicted murderer, who escaped with Sutton in 1947 from a Pennsylvania prison.

As police were alerted for Tenuto, however, the bartender said the man he saw was six feet tall and heavy-set; Tenuto is 5 feet four, and weighed 143 pounds at last report.

Tenuto has been at large since the 1947 prison break. The alarm for Tenuto remains in effect and he will be questioned, if apprehended, in connection with Schuster's death.

Police disclosed yesterday that Schuster, a clothing salesman, had received 11 threatening letters, one of them only a few hours before he was cut down in mobster execution style.

Police Commissioner George P. Monaghan said Schuster's lawyer had sent the letters to the FBI.

One of the letters, hand-printed and postmarked Feb. 21, said: "You won't have long to live. Willy has friends."

Schuster also received threatening telephone calls, police said. But Monaghan asserted that "at the present time" police were not linking the slaying to Sutton's capture.

The commissioner headed 150 police officers assigned to solve the killing.

One lower-ranking police official, who asked not to be quoted by name, theorized that Schuster's slaying might have been done by someone "who worshiped Sutton as an idol."

He recalled that ten-agers cheered Sutton ten days ago as the notorious bank robber was led out of a police station for a court appearance.

Sutton, himself, in jail awaiting trial for a $64,000 bank robbery in Queens county, was quoted as saying when told of Schuster's slaying:

"I could have fallen off the bed when I heard the news. Of course, this sinks any chance I might have had."

Expressions of anger and shock at the slaying came from various quarters.

The curly-haired former Coast Guardsman was at first said to have been shot in both eyes. This came from a neighborhood physician who reported Schuster's death to police.

Later it developed that two of the three shots fired into Schuster's head entered near his eyes but were not direct eye wounds. A fourth shot was in the abdomen.

Joseph Fody, New Jersey, Dies In Crash

Kresgeville—Joseph Fody, 46, Bloomfield, N. J., was killed when the car in which he was riding struck a telephone pole here on Route 209 at 2:40 a. m. yesterday.

Fody's brother-in-law, Jack Sustek, 43, Astoria, Long Island, the driver, was charged with involuntary manslaughter by Brodheadsville State police.

Both Sustek and his brother, Paul Sustek, 36, Riveredge, N. J., were injured in the crash.

Paul Sustek was admitted to the General hospital for treatment of a double fracture of the pelvis and multiple head, face and hand cuts. His condition was reported as "fairly good."

Jack Sustek was released after treatment of multiple head and face cuts.

He was given a hearing later in the morning before Justice of the Peace William N. Walton, and released on $1,500 appearance bond.

Police said the car was moving west.

A witness at the scene said the car left the highway on a curve, ran some distance along the shoulder. The vehicle's right side struck the telephone pole and slewed around, coming to rest about 12 feet from the pole.

One of the doors from the right side of the car was ripped off and remained wrapped around the pole.

The entire right side of the car, from the right front wheel on back, was smashed wide open, as though it had been cut with an acetylene torch.

The 1948 sedan was a $1,000 loss. Fody's body was released temporarily to Kresge funeral home at Brodheadsville.

Coroner W. E. Andrew said the death was caused by a skull fracture resulting from the accident. Police said the upper part of the victim's body was crushed in the impact.

All three were sitting in the front seat of the car at the time, police said. Investigation is continuing.

Fody's body will be transferred to the Gorny and Gorn funeral home at Bloomfield, for services there at 2 p. m. Wednesday. Burial will be at Mount Olivet cemetery in Bloomfield.

Rearmament Passes Test In Germany

Stuttgart, Germany, Monday (AP)—West German Rearmament passed its biggest public test successfully yesterday when Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's Christian Democrat party defeated the opposition Socialists in the first election in the newly-created Southwest state. Complete unofficial returns from three areas choosing members of a Constitutional Assembly showed:

Christian Democrats, 982,464; Socialists, 764,857; Free Democrats, 491,587; Communists, 191,631; Refugee party (BHE), 170,551; German Community-Refugee party, 83,502; Socialist Reich party, 65,766; Baden Centrist party, 23,389; Independents, 22,389; German Community party, 5,445.

Since the Socialists had stressed the issue of Adenauer's strong stand in favor of rearmament, the election appeared to be a clear victory for the chancellor. Dr. Kurt Schumacher, Socialist leader, had urged residents of the new Southwest state to show the Bonn government that rearmament is not favored.

Stroud Township Property Sells For $9,500, Is Assessed At $200

(This is the twelfth in a series of articles based on actual real estate sales in boroughs and townships and the amounts at which those properties were assessed. Figures were taken from official county records.)

By Leonard Randolph

During the last six months of 1951 real estate assessments in Stroud township ranged from 2 per cent to 30 per cent of the market value.

Total sales during the six-month period from July to December amounted to $234,000. These sales were assessed at a total of $27,755 or 10.9 per cent of the market value.

The six-month low was set in August when a Stroudsburg RD house sold for $9,500 and was assessed at $200—2 per cent of its true value.

Runner-up in the "low assessment" bracket was another Stroudsburg RD house, also sold in August, which had an assessed value of $1,050 as compared to its market value of $23,500. The assessment in this case was 4 per cent of the true value.

Three Stroud township properties—all in the lower-priced category—were assessed at 5 per cent of the value. A lot sold for $1,000 in August was assessed at $50; a Stroudsburg RD house, sold in September, with a market value of $1,000, had an assessed value of $50, a $2,000 tract of land, sold in December, was assessed at $100—all were assessed at 5 per cent of the true value.

In July a Stroudsburg RD "house and land" sold for $16,000. The property was assessed at $1,100 or 7 per cent of the value.

The first of three properties assessed at 8 per cent of their market value was sold in July. This was a $12,500 home in Pocono Park which was assessed at $1,050.

Two December sales were assessed at 8 per cent. A $14,000 Grandview home had an assessed value of $1,125; a $17,500 tract of land with house was assessed at $1,500.

A $6,500 Stroudsburg RD house was assessed at $500 or 9 per cent of its market value.

By far the greatest majority of Stroud township properties sold during the last six months of 1951 were assessed at a flat 10 per cent of their market value. Fifteen sales made during this period were assessed at 10 per cent.

These 15 sales ranged in market value from $500 to $11,500.

College Students Must File Test Application Today

Washington, (AP)—The Selective Service system yesterday reminded college students who plan to take its college qualification test on April 24 that they must have their applications filed or postmarked by not later than midnight tonight.

National headquarters estimates that possibly as many as 100,000 students may apply for the test, last for this academic year.

Only college students who intend to seek draft deferment as students and who have never taken the test are eligible. Last year about 360,000 students took the test. More than 61 per cent made a passing grade of 70 or higher. A local draft board may consider the mark a student makes in the test or his standing within his class in deciding whether to grant an educational deferment.

Two Townships Under Quarantine In Anti-Rabies Campaign

Tobyhanna, Coolbaugh In Buffer Zone

Two Monroe county townships have been quarantined in the current "anti-rabies campaign" being conducted by four State agencies in cooperation with the Federal Fish and Wildlife Service.

Both Coolbaugh and Tobyhanna townships are included in a 15-mile "buffer zone" in which poison bait has been extensively spread, according to Northeastern district drive coordinator Paul Failor.

Failor yesterday made a strong appeal to residents of the two townships to keep dogs under complete control until the area has been cleared by the Game commission. Fox hunters are especially asked to cooperate, Failor said.

The areas will be under quarantine for several weeks, Failor continued, "until such time as the poisons have either been picked up by the animals or officers. When this has been done, signs posted in the area will be removed."

Newspapers in the area will be immediately notified, Failor said, when the townships have been cleared. Perishable tallow bait is being used in addition to the crow bait described in press releases during the past two weeks.

Despite adverse weather conditions, the baiting program has proceeded on schedule. Agents working with game commissioners and State agencies have battled snow and ice conditions during the past seven days in order to place the bait in prescribed spots.

These same conditions have hampered the removal of some dead animals. According to Failor, all female foxes found thus far have been carrying young.

Strychnine, the poison which is being used in the anti-rabies drive, does not affect most game birds, according to Howard Martley, district agent of the Federal Fish and Wildlife Service, Department of Interior.

Martley, who has been working hand-in-hand with Failor since the inception of the campaign, emphasizes that all "gallinaceous birds" (which includes game birds such as the grouse, quail, turkey etc.) have a high resistance to strychnine. It is practically impossible to poison this type of bird with strychnine," Martley said. "The high resistance is due to the type of digestive system of the upland game bird which absorbs strychnine very slowly."

This slow absorption apparently makes it comparatively easy for the bird to get rid of the poison through normal excretory functions.

Certain game animals such as rabbit, squirrel and deer do not eat the bait since they are not carnivorous (meat-eating) animals, Failor pointed out.

All areas in which the poisonous bait has been placed have been conspicuously posted. Hunters and dog-owners, however, are warned that even though an area may not be posted it is still best to keep animals at home and out of the field.

By so doing, Failor concluded, the dog-owner may save his own dog's life. In addition to Failor and Martley, all game protectors in this area are cooperating in the campaign.

Game Protector John Doebeling, Stroudsburg, is group leader of the local area.

Herbert Assails 'Alibi Artists'

Washington (AP)—Rep. Herbert (D-La.) predicted yesterday that a congressional investigation of "Pentagon propagandists" will help Secretary of Defense Lovett "clean up" his department.

Herbert is chairman of a House armed services subcommittee which is probing reports of waste in military activities.

He said that "alibi artists" in the Pentagon have started a campaign to "deliberately distort" his group's findings. This was done, he said, without Lovett's support.

The Pentagon public relations organization, which Herbert said totals about 500 officers and civilians, will be investigated "thoroughly" in about two weeks when the subcommittee finishes another phase of its work.

Gunmen Fire 18 Rifle Shots At Watchmen Of Kentucky Mine Recently Closed By Pickets

Hyden, Ky., (AP)—Leslie County Sheriff George Wootton reported 18 rifle shots were fired at watchmen of the Citation Coal Co. mine late Saturday night. Investigation yesterday uncovered no clues to the gunman's identity.

The Citation mine was one of two Leslie county coal operations closed for several days last month by picket lines of the United Mine Workers. The union tried unsuccessfully to force recognition of the UMW as the bargaining agent for men at the Citation and New Hyden mines. Leslie and adjoining Clay counties are the last non-union areas in the southeastern Kentucky TESTIMONIAL TO WILLIAM V. NIXON'S service to the Pocono Mountains region in many capacities, including executive secretary of Pocono Mountains Chamber of Commerce and Vacation Bureau, was evidenced by attendance of some 200 persons at a luncheon in the Penn-Stroud hotel Saturday. Community Pays Tribute To William Nixon, Former Executive Secretary Of C. Of C.

The manifold achievements of William V. Nixon, native son of Monroe county, were used Saturday to wish him godspeed and success on his new venture as assistant to the president of Muhlenberg College.

Not only his success as executive secretary of Pocono Mountains Chamber of Commerce and Pocono Mountains Vacation bureau, but his achievement as director of General hospital building fund campaign, as executive director of public assistance, as a Red Cross field executive, member of UNRRA, and a more than successful high school, college and semi-pro athlete were paraded in a swift-moving tribute luncheon attended by some 200 persons in the Penn-Stroud hotel.

Frank S. LaBar, a long-time and very close friend of Mr. Nixon, acted as toastmaster. Mr. LaBar, noted for his ability as toastmaster and achiever of results on community projects, presented a masterful tribute to Mr. Nixon as the man who apparently talked him into more projects and schemes than any other person.

Mr. LaBar, to sum it up, is certain Mr. Nixon's success at Muhlenberg is not the end of the young executive's rise to the heights in the nation.

Toastmaster LaBar first presented these distinguished visitors and officials of various bodies:

J. C. Knowles, vice president, and E. B. Ace, industrial representative, P. P. & L. Co.; Judge Fred W. Davis, Rev. William F. Wunder, Gilbert Smrz, vice president of the Chamber; Mayor Hal H. Harris, Stroudsburg; Dr. J. F. Noonan, State Teachers College; Walter Peeney, vice president of the Chamber; Dr. P. N. Wohlson, Dr. Frank M. Maguire, a former Nixon coach at High school; John Cranford, vice president of Chamber of Commerce; Clifford Cramer, vice president of Chamber of Commerce; Frank B. Michaels and Gerald M. Anderson.

Superior Court Judge Chester H. Rhodes, president of Pennsylvania's appellate court, presented Mr. Nixon with a plaque expressing the community's appreciation for his service to this region in all capacities, and wishing him every success in his new post.

"We are all proud of a Monroe county boy when he's achieved what Bill has achieved," Judge Rhodes said.

He recalled that he had encouraged Nixon to attend college and he started at Muhlenberg in September 1929. The judge noted that Nixon completed despite the October, 1929 crash "and now he's going back to Muhlenberg to do a job."

Judge Rhodes praised Mr. Nixon's "great work in behalf of this region with the Chamber of Commerce and resort bureau" and his "outstanding work for the General hospital."

"It is truly gratifying to have a man of his ability from this region recognized, because we know he'll make a wonderful administrator." "Bill has been a wonderful son of Monroe county and we all wish him all the luck and success in the world," Judge Rhodes said.

Mr. LaBar introduced Mrs. Nixon as "the partner" who had helped Mr. Nixon win his present position.

Mr. Nixon expressed his "heartfelt" thanks for the community tribute by noting that his work had taken him away from this section for a number of years "and was called off Feb. 25 and he did not want to accuse anyone. The mine has been operating full force ever since the end of the picketing. Sizemore added, Thirty-two UMW members, identified as pickets during last month's stoppage at the Citation and New Hyden mines, will go on trial in Leslie circuit court here today on charges of contempt of court.

The 32 men are accused of violating a restraining order, issued by the court last June, prohibiting them from trespassing on the mine properties and from threatening or intimidating non-union miners or otherwise interfering with their work.

Rev. Wunder, pastor of Mr. Nixon's Grace Lutheran church, gave the invocation. The benediction was given by Dr. Wohlson.

Wootton called in State police and obtained bloodhounds yesterday to pick up a trail, due to dry conditions of the ground.

At Manchester, Ariz. Sizemore, one of the two owners of the Citation mine, told Wootton he was greatly surprised at the attack and had no idea who could have done the shooting. He said the union had given his miners no trouble since the picketing

Sheriff Wootton said yesterday that two nightwatchmen told him they returned the fire of the unknown gunmen who fired toward the tipple from a mountain-side near the mine.

Wootton called in State police and obtained bloodhounds yesterday to pick up a trail, due to dry conditions of the ground.

Nearby County To Buy Maps

Northampton county commissioners have swung into action on the State's new assessment laws by taking the first step toward setting up a permanent record system.

The step was approval of the purchase of master maps and indices from which 1947 Army aerial photos can be chosen.

Estimated cost of the aerial maps for the entire county was estimated at $1,000. Master maps and indices will cost $50.

At a recent meeting of county commissioners throughout the State, use of the maps was proposed as a means of saving the cost of mapping the counties.

Buying the maps from the Federal Production and Marketing administration might save as much as $50,000, according to Northampton commissioners, because it would avoid the extensive engineering work needed to map rural areas.

Commissioners said prices of the maps would be hiked April 1, citing this as a reason for prompt purchase.

The permanent record system set up under the new assessment legislation must be completed within five years.

Supply Of Steel Exceeds Demand

Sharon, Pa. (AP)—Two open hearth furnaces at the Roemer works of Sharon Steel Corp. in nearby Farrell will be shut down next week because the supply of steel on hand is outrunning demand.

A company spokesman said high inventory and low orders make the move necessary. He added "military business just isn't coming in fast enough to take up the slack" caused by government controls on materials available to private business.

The spokesman said the firm regards the situation as temporary but he could not say when conditions are expected to get better.

Listening To Loud Voices

Universal Military Training has only a frail chance, if any, of being enacted by Congress in this election year.

The House, by a vote of 236 to 162, has sent the bill back to committee.

By this vote, the House has repudiated the overwhelming vote by which it last year approved Universal Military Training "in principle." It now says it didn't mean it.

By this vote, the House has rejected the considered advice of the country's foremost leaders: General Eisenhower, General Marshall, President Truman, Bernard Baruch, the late James Forrestal, the late Robert P. Patterson and countless others.

By this vote, the House has served notice on the world—Russia included—that the United States does not intend to keep its manpower ready to meet the challenge of aggression.

By this vote, the House is saying it prefers to go on maintaining a huge standing military force, at a cost of many extra billions, for years to come.

By this vote, the House indicates a willingness to risk sending America's young men, if the nation suddenly should be attacked, into an all-out war with little or no training.

By this vote, the House is deciding that the world situation is not nearly so grave as the facts show it to be.

By all measures of public opinion, a huge majority of Americans believe Universal Military Training is an essential part of the program to prevent aggression—or to meet it if it comes.

But the House says by its vote that, while this may be so, the voices of the opposition are louder. And it bows to the force of pressure groups.

On few occasions in American history, when danger was parked on its doorstep, has the Congress of the United States listened so attentively to the sirens of complacency.

Communist Candor

For once, the Communists have been entirely frank about their aims and beliefs. And the result should be highly educational to any citizens who might still believe the Communies when they talk about freedom.

The event was a "freedom of the press" rally in Philadelphia last Saturday. It was whipped up to boost sales for the "Daily Worker," official publication of the Communist Party.

But it turned out that the only press freedom the Communies were interested in is that of their own newspaper, which is still able to publish every day and even enjoys the same mailing privileges granted to other and more respectable publications.

When photographers from the "capitalist" press showed up to take pictures, they were booed, threatened and manhandled. Some of the promoters of the rally asked Detective Sergeant James McTague to throw them out.

"Not me," Sergeant McTague replied. "This is a freedom of the press rally, isn't it? Well, I believe in freedom of the press, too."

There was no mention at the rally of the case of Associated Press Reporter William Oatis, framed and imprisoned by the Communist government of Czechoslovakia for doing his job as a practitioner of press freedom. The Communies aren't interested in any but their own freedoms.

New York —

After nearly 20 years of sitting

in assorted

parts of every

legitimate theater

in New York City —

years spent marveling

at such masterpieces

as Jose Ferrer's Jago,

K. Hepburn's

Tracy Lord and Maurice Evans'

Hamlet—it is sad indeed to arrive gradually at this true conclusion: the movies finally have outstripped the stage as a dramatic art medium.

I am not trying to be pontifical about this, but the fact is, I was talking the other afternoon with a friend of mine named Ted

Croner, who in addition to being one of the top high-fashion

photographers in Manhattan —

you see his work in the Harper's

Bazaar—type magazines—is in his own way as much of an aficionado about New York as I am. He photographs it and I write about it and, likely, neither of us ever will tire of it.

It was Ted who brought up the issue. He had just come from seeing the movie of Detective

Story and he couldn't stop talking about it. He told me all the visual ways in which the movie outdid the play, and he was right.

He pointed out, for example,

how the camera took the audience's attention and swung it around sharply and in clear focus exactly where it wanted it. The camera's flexibility, he said, let the movie hurtle along at uninterrupted breakneck speed, without the occasionally necessary device of the theater of having action take place off-stage.

You could go on and on about the technical aspects of it all, and the only big black marks against the movie are (1) the drawbacks of being on celluloid, which is becoming unimportant in a movie-educated age, and (2) the Lana

Turner, Betty Grable, John

Wayne adventures in amiably childish trash. And even these latter lose their stigma when you realize how many almost equally childish plays are produced these days.

The films have been mumbering something about movies being better than ever—and, oddly, it is true. I keep thinking of the good ones I have seen in the last couple of years. A Streetcar

Named Desire, A Place in the

Sun, The African Queen, Detective

Story, Phone Call From a

Stranger—Lord, when you look back on those, they've all turned up in the last six months.

In that time, what has the New York stage (which is the same thing as the American stage) offered? A couple of good musicals, a superb production of Shaw's

Cleopatra . . . and a handful of the most boring dramas this side of summer stock.

I had it brought home sharply to me recently. I went one night to see the new Christopher Fry play, Venus Observed, which was directed by Laurence Olivier and was billed as one of the theatrical events of the season. I walked out after one act.

Couple of nights later I saw a spy thriller called Five Fingers, which pretended to be no more than it was—and the story, told against the actual backgrounds of Ankara and Istanbul, was as dramatic as Venus Observed was not.

The one edge the stage seems to have is in the presentation of classics and plays appealing to the intellect—and even here Oliver's

Hamlet and Ferrer's Cyano have made sharp inroads.

The stage still can be more adult and the movies still must

CALLING FOR YOUR SUPPORT!

Looking At Life —by Erich Brandeis

Today a letter came to me from Greencastle, Indiana.

My better judgment tells me to leave it unanswered.

Because I just know that I shall now get quite a few letters calling me all kinds of names and challenging my right and my authority to give religious advice.

But I like these challenges. I like to stick my neck out.

I think when a fellow has definite beliefs on certain matters he ought not to hide those beliefs.

To be perfectly convinced of one's beliefs and then to deny them or to circumvent them would be hypocrisy.

And I would rather be called a fool than a hypocrite.

This man from Greencastle writes as follows: From this handwriting, by the way, I take it that he is a pretty old man—old enough soon to have to face his Maker.

"I read your column regularly and enjoy it. Thanks," he writes.

"Now tell me whether you believe that there is a hell for the wicked. I don't."

"It would be interesting to see an article soon on your belief as to the future of mankind."

"Will it be a conscious condition? Will we remember this existence? Will our personality be retained?"

"I am sure you can benefit many people by helping them to get rid of that bugaboo-teaching of eternal torment."

You must admit that this is cater to the producer's fixation that there must be happy endings—but in all other ways, I am afraid, the cinema has taken a few giant strides ahead.

To me this is sad. I have the feeling that now, whenever I take my aisle seat for a first or second night, I will be watching the play with my half-conscious—and wondering, with the other half, how much better the movies could have made it.

This is, of course, heresy. I expect George Jean Nathan to pistol-whip me the next time I walk into Dinty Moore's and I will not be surprised if all the girls at the Rehearsal Club advance on me from 53rd street with drawn batons. I have committed a cardinal sin and I am ready to pay for it.

The Tail of A Tiger

I do not know how well President Truman, knows Newbold Morris, but when he took on the New York reformer to purify his Administration, he took a chance on Morris eventually going after the President himself.

Newbold possesses no penchant for partisan regularity. He calls himself a Republican, as was his father before him, but he has been in and out of Republican regularity, often being a Liberal and always closely associated with Fiorello La Guardia. He was a fighting, one might almost say, an obstreperous President of the Council in New York City. He has run independently for Mayor and has been defeated.

How he managed to get himself picked to purify the Truman Administration is a puzzle. Perhaps the Trumanites were seeking for a Republican to envelope them in an ectoplasm of sweetness and light. Whatever it is, they could not have expected Morris to send out a questionnaire invading the privacy of everybody who works for the government. He is quite right in his position that a public man has chosen a public life; yet why should men have to explain why their wives wear mink coats and diamond rings? Maybe, they were bought on the installment plan.

Back in the good old days of Collidge and Hoover, it was necessary to clean up the messiness of the Harding Administration. As regards the Teapot Dome scandal, eight men were involved. Three of them committed suicide, four were convicted. The eighth, Attorney General Harry M. Daugherty, was let off by two hung juries. All the property involved, Teapot Dome and Elk Hills, was restored to the Government.

It was really such a simple matter back in those days, because the Administration functioned by due process of the law. No special purifiers were set up to do the job; no questionnaires were sent all over the place indiscriminately.

It was assumed, as it always has been in our law, that every man is innocent until he is proved guilty, and that it is the business of the law-enforcement agencies to get their own information.

The widespread issuance of the questionnaire presumes that everybody is a crook unless he can establish his innocence. Perhaps that is what the socialized society in which we live postulates.

Certainly, questionnaires, inquiries, inspectors, all sorts of means have been employed these many years to keep business men full of ulcers.

Now the tables are turning and the same attitude and the same methods are being applied to public officials. Does your heart bleed for them? It can only be said for Newbold Morris that he is doing what the Administration has regularly done to everybody else. They will not like it and on the basis of American law, it is altogether wrong. But they started it.

It will be exciting to see what Newbold Morris does with all this authority and power. Congress has withheld from him the power of subpoena and the right to grant immunity, but he threatens to resign if he is crossed. It is difficult to know what that would do to the President politically, although the Republicans would use it to prove that everybody who did not answer the Morris questionnaire is a self-confessed crook, which may not be so at all.

In another era, most self-respecting men would refuse to answer, and be damned to you, sir! But these days, we are all so suspicious, what with our best friends getting tankers and their wives wearing mink coats on small salaries.

We ought to have lots of amusement out of all this, because Newbold Morris is not only cantankerous but his sense of humor is not of the strongest. He will undoubtedly try to purify the Administration in Washington as he tried to purify the City of New York. His chlorination here left the city more crooked than ever, the smart boys somehow feeling secure in their smartness. It was the District Attorney of Brooklyn, Miles McDonald, and the Kefauver Committee that really showed what the crooks were and how much they were stealing. And the funny thing about it is that the crooks never stopped doing business to this day. The flexible mind takes advantage of every situation, often because nobody really cares.

Try And Stop Me

—by Bennet Cerf

Samuel Taylor Coleridge was forever preaching sermons to his friends, as a result of which they ducked down an alley whenever they saw him first. He nabbed one friend who wasn't alert enough on a street corner and began his preaching, holding firmly to his friend's coat button while he orated. Desperate, the friend finally snipped off his coat button, darted away through the traffic, and left Coleridge — still talking and holding the button.

Publisher William Sloane hired a new secretary just before he flew to London for a scouting trip. The secretary was told, "If anybody calls Mr. Sloane, just say he's gone to the United Kingdom." The next day a man did call, and the secretary said, "I'm sorry, but Mr. Sloane is dead."

Washington Report

—by Fulton Lewis, Jr.

Washington, March 9 — Not all of the thieving, political conniving, fixing and five percent taking place in Washington.

Right now, in the State of Arkansas, there is underway a side show to some of the congressional investigations that needs more public attention than it is getting. Governor Sid McMath, who started a sort of bush league Fair Deal when he became Governor in 1948, is getting some of the political shine rubbed off in the process.

McMath has a $28,000,000 highway construction program in operation in Arkansas. This year the voters decided to take a peek at how the money is being spent. They got their eyes opened big and bright for their pains.

So far, at public hearings, five major equipment suppliers have testified that any contracts obtained from the State Highway Department were conditioned on their contributions to Gov. McMath's campaigns. Two contractors have admitted contributions of $13,000 and $9,000 respectively.

The same two contractors said they gave $100 Christmas gifts and made still unrepaid loans to the State of Arkansas Purchasing Agent. The agent, John K. Brown, quit after his last appearance before the State Highway Audit Commission that is conducting the public hearings. Brown admitted before departing the public payroll, however, that he got a new Buick in exchange for his old Chevrolet from a dealer who was trying to sell 100 trucks to the State Highway Department.

An audit of the Highway Department books also has revealed that $2,000,000 worth of contracts have been let without the competitive bidding required by law; that $10,800 was paid out in rentals for five dump trucks which were never used on any highway construction project; and that a member of the State Alcoholic Beverage Control Board collected the $10,800 and then tossed a $1,000 contribution into Gov. McMath's campaign kitty because he thought it was the thing to do.

The trick of the year, however, was performed by a former Highway Department maintenance engineer. He was paid a salary of $5,500 a year. Out of this he contributed $4,000 to Gov. McMath's campaign. There is considerable skepticism in the State that the cash came out of the maintenance engineer's pocket. Two months after making the contribution to the Governor's campaign fund, he quit to take a job with a large company that supplies asphalt to the State for highway construction projects.

As a result of the hearings, political henchmen of McMath's are dropping like flies off the State payroll. Some of them give the usual reason of ill health or the press of other business, just as do President Truman's aides and advisors who get caught with their hands in the wrong drawer. Residents of Arkansas, however, are needing the state prosecutor to dust off his law books and haul some of the officials into grand jury rooms for further discussions.

The Audit Commission is assisted in its investigation by the Arkansas State Attorney General, Ike Murray. Murray has been accused by McMath of political witch hunting for revealing that some of McMath's henchmen deal with political fixers and that they have their hands out for bribes. The Audit Commission, however, pulled a fast one on the Governor, so McMath's complaints are being ignored. It hired an audit firm from outside the state to go over Highway Department books. The firm turned up all kinds of shady dealings with public funds and as a result the investigation led right to the Governor's doorstep.

McMath is seeking a third term this fall. He has a lot of explaining to do about how his two previous campaigns were financed. So far, from the evidence now on the books, it appears that the taxpayers indirectly did the financing, in the form of hush donations from highway construction firms that didn't even have to go through the formality of bidding before being handed fat State contracts.

Be it Washington or Arkansas these so-called "Fair Deals" smell the same.

Howdy Folks!

Just as there are all types of individuals in any line of business, so, too, are there photographers, and then again, there are photographers.

Sound like double talk? Well, read on . . . it really isn't.

There are photographers who are sincerely interested in pleasing their customers . . . who want to do satisfactory work . . . who want to sell their product at reasonable prices . . . because they intend to remain in their chosen community to become a part of it, and to be accepted as fellow-citizens by the people in it.

Then there are photographers who, possibly, are interested only in the amount of money they can take from their "customers" in a quick transaction.

They care nothing about the satisfaction the customer should receive from their work. Why should they, when they don't intend to stay in that particular place?

We are local businessmen, interested in the future of this community and in this area.

We endeavor to serve the people of this area with the finest professional photography service available anywhere. This service is offered at reasonable rates for top-quality work.

We sincerely thank you for your past patronage and support, and in the future we want to continue to merit your confidence.

Experiences in Africa were described to members of Mrs. Stine's Sunday school class of East Stroudsburg Methodist church recently in a letter from Barbara Hartman, a missionary. Also discussed at the monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. Thelma Lee, 523 Queen St., Stroudsburg, was a project of making scrapbooks to go to children's wards in hospitals.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Lee and Mrs. Alma Brands to Mrs. Kenneth Stine, Mrs. Carol Bachman, Mrs. Elsie Ludwig, Mrs. Shirlee Snyder, Mrs. Arlene Mosher, Mrs. Pat Van Buskirk, Mrs. Faith Caramella, Mrs. Audrey Lessig, Mrs. June Possinger, Freda Coffman and Babs George.

THE Wyckoff SHOPPER

One of the happiest expressions on anyone's face this past Saturday night was worn by Ruth Widmer, head of our luggage and umbrella department. It was so bright, as a matter of fact, that most of us looked pretty tired and jaded by comparison.

I had stopped in her department to make a purchase, and casually remarked that she certainly must have had a good day. "Oh, I did," Ruth said happily. "Everyone has been buying luggage. And so early in the season, too!"

Now what do you suppose accounts for this? Can it be that everyone who heard Edna Brockman mention Bermuda at Easter is rushing right out to prepare for a vacation? I must check with our Wyckoff Travel Bureau and see. Or is it just that all the new luggage by Samsonite and the other companies represented in our display, is just too beautiful to be resisted?

In my own case the purchase was made for two reasons—because the little makeup box is practical and will fill a long need . . . and because it is sturdy and good looking although it is priced at only $3.98 plus tax. These cases by Congress come in imitation leather with padded leather handles and locks. Inside they are simply roomy boxes, the lids of which hold large, clear mirrors. Similar cases can be had in the neighborhood of $18. But for a person who travels as little as I, the one chosen is completely adequate. It is, in fact, the perfect answer to the transporting of accessories, makeup, wash cloth and towel to Bangor for tonight's fashion show. Many of us will be leaving right after lunch with the Wyckoff truck, and quite a bit of "touching up" will be in order before 8 p. m.

Whatever your shopping needs, adopt the habit of bringing them to Wyckoff's. Some department head most certainly has an answer that will make living easier and more comfortable for you . . . at the price you can afford to pay.

Old Military Spirit Rears Up In Japan

By Robert T. Oliver
Pennsylvania State College

A resurgence of the old military spirit in Japan is one result of the indecisive Korean truce talks.

The talks are having effects on the Japanese which may undermine all that had been achieved in starting that island empire toward an era of democracy.

A spirit is arising inside Japan similar to that aroused in Germany by Hitler in 1933. Many Japanese are now saying to each other, "We didn't really lose World War Two. Our people and armies still were intact and filled with the will to fight. Only our government officials became frightened and surrendered unnecessarily."

The reasoning behind the statements is based on statements by Allied leaders after the war that it would have cost a half million Allied casualties to storm and capture Japan's main islands.

Now the people of Japan are saying, "The democracies don't have the strength of will and purpose to take such enormous casualties as that. They would have given us at least a compromise peace and we might yet have Korea, Formosa and our northern islands."

Japan, they point out, seized Korea without difficulty in 1905 and later went on unaided to the conquest of Manchuria, most of China and all of Southeast Asia.

"Look at the situation now," they say. "The U. S. and all its allies can't conquer little Korea, let alone China too."

Whether their reasoning is false is beside the point. The fact is that these things are being said openly up and down Tokyo's Ginza and wherever else Japanese meet to talk.

It has led to the resurgence of military spirit thought to have been destroyed.

The Japanese government has several times offered to provide land or naval forces to assist the UN in Korea.

These offers have been flatly rejected by the Korean government, which sees them as the first step toward reoccupation of Korea.

President Syngman Rhee has argued that if the U. S. has weapons to outfit a Japanese force, those weapons might better be given to Koreans to use in defense of their homeland.

Meanwhile, Japan has shown reluctance to undertake the organization of any major armed forces. The "little people" of Japan say publicly that if Japan re-arms on any extensive scale it could only be to fight Russia on behalf of American security.

Better, they say, to sit out the next war, hoping to emerge from it as one of the few remaining strong powers in the world.

At best Japan is in a difficult position. Its economic recovery has been vastly speeded by the Korean war. A great many Allied supplies have been purchased in Japan.

But in the long run, Japan sees little hope of supporting its population of 85 million unless it can develop a trade with China large enough to make up for the loss of Korea, Manchuria and Formosa.

There is pressure within Japan for a trade treaty with the Chinese Reds. Thus far the government has resisted such pressure.

The large and vocal Japanese Communist party, however, is capitalizing by telling the people their livelihood is suffering from this "American-dictated" decision.

As the Japanese government resists this pressure from the Communist minority, it is shoved closer and closer to the reactionary military group.

Maintaining any mid-position will be difficult—and may prove impossible.

Happy Fireman Acclaims Vaylo

Daylight Found Me Completely Worn Out

Mr. Page Garland, Fire Captain of Hampton, New Hampshire writes—My duties as Fire Captain are performed at all hours of the day and night, and are a terrific tax on my system. I had no appetite, started to lose weight and sleep was next to impossible. My nerves were just plain ragged.

I was told that I had a vitamin and mineral deficiency. I tried many things without success until a druggist friend suggested VAYLO. I had read about it in Reader's Digest, so started VAYLO and within a short time I felt like my old self. Even the boys at the Fire House noticed the improvement in my condition.

VAYLO has worked wonders for men and I would not be without it for the world. I want to tell everyone about it.

Life of Riley

By JIM RILEY
Sports Editor

This writer missed his first home basketball game played by the East Stroudsburg State Teachers College varsity this season on Saturday, due to the magnetic pull of the National Invitation Tournament which opened its annual stand in New York's spacious Madison Square Garden on the same date that the Warriors were scheduled to wrap up one of their poorest seasons in history, while playing host to the same Wilkes College contingent that scored a 68-64 nod over the charges of Coach Ed Shay earlier in the season.

Even though I thrilled at the terrific battle between LaSalle and Seton Hall along with more than 18,000 other people, and marveled at the fine ball handling ability of Dayton and Western Kentucky, I couldn't completely blank out the regret of not seeing the Warriors bring down the curtain on the 1951-1952 campaign, even though the game did result in the fourteenth reversal of the season for the Shaysmen, which far outweighed the four victories accounted for by the same club.

I would have liked to watch all five seniors on the club, namely Bill Schmidt, Jim Frawley, Frank "Whites" Whitecave, Jack McGlade and Francis "Chick" McGlade go out in a blaze of personal glory. However, a quick look at the box score of the ESSTC-Wilkes game last night awoke me to the fact that even if I had been among the very few people attending the struggle on Normal Hill, I couldn't have watched the five seniors bow out, in glory or otherwise.

This column was informed, strictly unofficially, on Friday that both Schmidt and Frawley would sit out Saturday's contest. However, I considered the usually reliable source very lightly this time and thought certainly the kids that had given their very lives to ESSTC basketball during the past three years would certainly see at least limited service. However, obviously such wasn't the case, as the three columns in the box score total and I can't find the names of Schmidt or Frawley among those playing.

Even though they didn't go through the paces of the final game with their classmates, Jim and Bill can be extremely proud of their record on the basketball court while wearing the uniform and bearing the colors of ESSTC, not to mention their good academic work while attending the red brick school perched atop Normal Hill. These two kids can look back on some thrilling and really well played games and can console themselves with the fact that they both contributed heavily to virtually all the basketball victories turned in by the Warriors in the past three years.

Another senior who deserves an extra pat on the back is McGlade, who although virtually a substitute at all times, played two years of basketball with ESSTC, going in and out of action whenever notified. "Chick" always did everything in his power to bring the Warriors home in front, although it apparently was a futile task during the past campaign. McGlade was hampered by the fact that he was doing his student teaching in Fountain Hill, but he was always on hand for practice and for the trips to foreign courts.

Whitecave and McGlade haven't been spectacular in their basketball since entering ESSTC, but each has played enough so that he will be missed by those who have watched the Warriors in action in recent years. Oddly enough the list of five seniors includes one man at home in the center spot, two in the forward berths and two in the guard positions. I really thought that this was the club that would answer the opening bell against Wilkes, although it didn't necessarily have to remain intact for more than a couple of minutes.

However, the score sheet in front of me makes it obvious that this lineup never became a reality. However, I was informed that the cheerleaders led a cheer for the fourth-year players and that the small crowd in turn responded with a loud and long applause for the seniors who "suited up" for the final time in their collegiate careers. It's always tough to see a season end, but it's even tougher to see a group of good guys bow out of action.

Basketball, wrestling, swimming and girls' basketball is a thing of the past for the present on Normal Hill, with baseball, men's and women's tennis and track slowly moving into the spot left vacant in each of our interests. Memories of the winter sports schedule aren't too pleasant—except that victory turned in by the ESSTC girls over Temple on Saturday morning. If the old memory serves me right, that's three straight over the Owlettes, a feat really worth writing home about.

Wilkes Inflicts Fourteenth Basketball Loss On ESSTC

Maioriello, Palmer Lead Losing Attack

East Stroudsburg State Teachers College, playing without the services of Bill Schmidt and Jim Frawley for the second straight game, wound up the 1951-1952 basketball season on a losing note, last night while bowing to Wilkes College, 82-73, on the Normal Hill hardwood. The loss was the fourteenth in 18 outings for the Warriors this season and the second suffered at the hands of Wilkes.

The smallest crowd of the season was on hand to see the charges of Coach Ed Shay bring down the curtain on the current court campaign. However, those attending did see the home team eagers step off to a lead in the first quarter and enter the second round on the long end of a 21-15 count.

However, Wilkes took advantage of a switch in the ESSTC lineup at this point, vaulted into the lead and held the front running position for the remainder of the distance.

The visiting Wilkes contingent had the better of the going in the second period, 26-11, and reached the halfway mark on the long end of a 41-32 count.

Both teams battled on exactly even terms during the third and fourth periods, but the Warriors were never capable of making up the nine-point deficit that confronted them at halftime.

Even Fight
Each cage machine registered 20 points during the third ten-minute session and then each came back with 21 counters during the fourth and final stanza. Wilkes was in front at the three-quarter mark, 61-52.

Wilkes made good on 26 of 40 shots from the free-throw line, while the Warriors hit on 15 of 25 shots from the same position on the floor.

Ed Palmer was the big gun in a losing cause for ESSTC, racking up 23 points on 11 field goals and a single foul shot. Joe Maioriello was next in line with 14 tallies, on five goals from the floor and four from the foul line.

Ed Betrony, with 25 counters, and Tom Davis, with 23 markers, led the Wilkes machine to victory. Betrony made 13 of his points from the foul line, where he enjoyed a perfect 13-for-13 mark.

Wilkes took the measure of virtually the same band of Warriors early in the season, 68-64, on the Wilkes-Barre school's home court.

The Freshmen took the measure of the Sophomores, 45-35, in last night's preliminary tussle.

LIU Tank Squad Sinks Warriors, 57-26

Brooklyn—Long Island University inflicted the sixth straight swimming defeat of the current campaign on the East Stroudsburg State Teachers College swimming team here in the Central YMCA pool on Saturday, 57-26. The Warriors wound up the 1952 season without a favorable water decision.

The charges of Coach Frank Grimm were able to win only one event in the final outing of the campaign. Dave Lewis, heroic long distance swimmer at ESSTC, splashed to victory in the grueling 440-yard free style event, in six minutes and 26 seconds.

Points
All the other ESSTC points were picked up as second and third place finishes, while LIU, the host contingent, finished top-dog in nine of the ten events on the agenda.

In addition to LIU, ESSTC suffered reversals at the hands of Lafayette, West Chester, Brooklyn Poly and two defeats by Cortland State Teachers.

Burke Sets New Record In St. Petersburg Open Tourney

St. Petersburg, Fla. (AP)—Jack Burke kept golf's hottest winning streak alive yesterday by winning the $10,000 St. Petersburg open tournament with a record-shattering 266.

While his opponents sweated and scrambled for birdies, the handsome young star from Houston, Tex., was a picture of cool confidence as he stroked the final round in 66 to win by a fat eight strokes over big Al Bessellink of Chicago.

The $2,000 first prize was the fourth in a row for Burke, who had swept the Texas open, Houston Open and Baton Rouge Open in succession, and it increased his bankroll, the biggest of the winter golf tour, to $8,720.

A leader by six strokes after Saturday's third round, Burke went out yesterday under no pressure and was expected to play it safe and easy while the others gambled and strained to catch up. A straight par game would have clinched first place.

But when he came in with his 66, six under par for the Lake-wood Country Club course, Burke admitted he was shooting for the tournament record of 268 established last winter by Jim Ferrier of San Francisco.

"I felt that if I played it too safe I might get in trouble," Burke said.

Bessellink, holding up well under the demoralizing pressure applied by the Texan, shot a 68 yesterday for 274 to capture the second prize of $1,400.

Cary Middlecoff of Memphis, Tenn., the second day leader, could do no better than par and he wound up in a third place tie with Tommy Bolt of Durham, N. C., and Skeet Riegel of Tulsa, Okla., at 278.

Warriorettes Snap Temple's Basketball Victory Streak

Temple University's five-game winning streak compiled by its girls' basketball team came to an end on Saturday, as the lassies of East Stroudsburg State Teachers College finished on the winning end of a 37-36 count, in the early afternoon hours. The game was delayed one hour by the late arrival of the Temple squad.

The win was the second scored over the Owlettes by the charges of Coach Genevieve Zimbar in as many years, as ESSTC won a well played 41-40 verdict last season.

ESSTC, led by Jane Moffet, Carol Mosser, Joan Givens and Doris "Toughy" Zerby, broke into the lead late in the first quarter, despite several missed scoring opportunities, to take an 11-9 advantage into the second round.

Lead

However, Temple, sporting five victories without a setback, came to life in the second stanza and led 19-17 at halftime, after holding a 10-6 edge in the second period.

ESSTC picked up one point in the third period, after holding a 10-9 advantage and put the game on ice in the final quarter, with a 10-8 bulge in the scoring, despite a late flurry by Temple.

Moffet led the ESSTC scoring with 13 points, while Mosser added ten; Givens, eight, and Zerby, six.

Joan Paul and Marg Kline were the big guns for Temple, with 13 and 21 markers respectively.

The victory enabled the Warriorettes to complete their season with three wins and a pair of setbacks.

Robinson To Risk Crown Against Olson

New York, (AP)—The first of three projected title defenses by middleweight champion Sugar Ray Robinson highlights this week's boxing program.

Robinson, idle since regaining his crown from Randy Turpin of England last September 12 in a sensational slugfest match here, meets Carl (Bobo) Olson of Honolulu in San Francisco Thursday night. That's the bout originally scheduled for December, then January, and postponed until now because of Robinson's aching back.

If he gets past Olson, Robinson's present plans call for him to defend the crown against "Rocky" Graziano of New York in Chicago April 16 and against Paddy Young of New York here May 16.

Besides these plans, Robinson also is hoping for a shot at light heavyweight champion Joey Maxim sometime during the summer.

Lightweight champion Jimmy Carter of New York also is in action this week, meeting Luther Rawlings of Chicago in a non-title bout Wednesday night at Chicago Stadium. Lanky Luther hopes to get a title bout if he makes a good showing in the non-championship go. Any radio-TV (CBS) fans who tune in after the start probably won't miss much, for both boys are extremely slow starters.

The Friday night radio-TV bout from Madison Square Garden is not set. Brooklyn's Johnny Saxton was to meet Johnny Bratton of Chicago, but the latter injured his hand yesterday and had to withdraw from the fight. Matchmaker Al Weill said if he is unable to find a replacement for Bratton, he'll put together a complete new fight.

Fox Drives Home Marker For Sox

Los Angeles (AP)—Nellie Fox' third single of the game drove home Jim Busby in the ninth inning yesterday to give the Chicago White Sox a 3-2 decision over their city rivals, the Cubs.

Homers

Eddie Robinson put the Sox ahead 2-0 in the fourth inning with a homer off Joe Hatten. The Cubs scored in the bottom of the fourth and tied at 2-2 in the eighth with the help of Eddie Miksis' double and Luis Aloma's wild pitch.

Coatesville, which downed defending champion Radnor Thursday night, 65-54, meets Bristol tomorrow night at Philadelphia's Penn Palestra. Bristol defeated Doylestown, 36-35, Saturday night. Tuesday's winner meets Chester in Friday night's District One Finals.

Bethlehem's East Penn champs are matched against Mahanoy City of the Black Diamond league Wednesday night at Allentown with the winner taking on Catasauqua in the District 11 finals Saturday at the Penn Palestra.

Syracuse Continues To Hold Upper Hand In IBA Tourney

State College, (AP)—Officials of the Intercollegiate Boxing association have been talking about expanding their league and the four schools that have tried in vain to end Syracuse's domination probably will say it's about time.

For the fourth time in as many years and the eleventh since the IBA tournament was inaugurated in 1924, Syracuse ran off with the team title Saturday night. The Orange clad scrappers tutored by Roy Simmons, dean of the college boxing coaches, had a rather close call. They piled up 24 points to retain the Edward J. Neil Memorial trophy, championship emblem named in honor of the former Associated Press boxing expert and war correspondent.

Most Valuable

Army tallied 21 points and in addition to the most valuable boxer trophy, which went to light heavyweight Jim McInerney. The other teams might as well have stayed at home.

This probably will go down as the first college boxing tournament ever decided in a hotel room. The three point margin of victory was provided by an unusual collegiate rule which says that when a boxer who wins is unable to continue in competitions, the loser shall replace him.

This put John "Whitey" Maher of Syracuse into the 178 pound final against McInerney in place of Penn State's Adam Kois. Maher was beaten by Kois in the semi-final, but Kois broke a bone in his right hand and couldn't continue.

Martin, Stout Top Field In Ski Meet

White Haven—Spencer Martin and Ann Stout were winners in the men's and women's divisions of the Wilburger Trophy ski meet respectively yesterday here on Split Rock's famed Big Boulder slope.

Both Martin and Stout are members of the Wissahickon Ski club and proved the cream of the crop of Philadelphia area skiers during yesterday morning's action.

Martin won the men's slalom event in 1:04.2, while Bill Mellet, unattached, came home in second place in 1:04.5. Third place went to Larry Benner, Buck Ridge Ski club in 1:09.2, while Everett Lordwood, Buck Ridge, finished fourth in 1:10.3 and William Van Intes, Philadelphia Ski club, was fifth with a time of 1:14.5.

More Action
Lordwood won the downhill event in the men's division, in 32.6 seconds, while Don Tournegian, Buck Ridge, was second in 33.1 seconds. Martin finished third in this event in 33.2 seconds, while Mellet and Van Intes rounded out the top five in that order, in times of 33.5 and 33.9 seconds respectively.

However, Martin's combined time of 1:37.4 for the two events placed the Wissahickon club entry in the number one spot for the meet.

Stout won the women's slalom event in 1:00.2, while Shirley Knerr, also of the Wissahickon club, placed second in this event with a time of 1:17.8. Third place went to Mary Lilly, of the Buck Ridge club, in 1:25.6.

Knerr won the downhill event in 37.6 seconds, while Stout came in second on the strength of a time of 37.6 seconds. Lilly finished third with a time of 1:01.1. However, Stout's combined time of 1:37.4 brought the women's title to the Wissahickon club member.

Approximately 25 entries were counted in yesterday's event.

Philadelphia Flattens Reds

Clearwater, Fla. (AP) — Five and six-run scoring spurts in the fifth and seventh innings gave the Philadelphia Phillies a 12-5 victory over the Cincinnati Reds in an exhibition encounter between the two clubs' "B" teams yesterday.

Futile Effort
The Reds sent five hurlers to the mound in a futile effort to stem the tide. The loss went to rookie George McPhail who relieved starter Joe Nuxhall in the fifth.

Steve Ridzik who succeeded Paul Stuffer in the fourth, was the winning pitcher.

Film Capital's Stars Too Scared To Enact Role So Will Rogers Jr. will Portray Dad

By ARMAND ARCHER

Hollywood—They were all scared to do it. Bing Crosby, Gary Cooper, Joel McCrea, Spencer Tracy, Chill Williams, James Stewart, John Wayne, Stuart Erwin and Noah Beery, Jr., to mention a few who wouldn't risk their professional standing portraying Will Rogers in the screen version of the great American's life.

So meet the guy who's just as scared, but who is now acting the part. He's Will Rogers, Jr. And he's as good a physical resemblance as you would hope to find. Bill, as he prefers to be called, should also have inherited his dad's famous alarm clock. We had a 12:30 appointment and we didn't get together till three. He forgot all about it. Finally found him on a far-off corner of the studio lot where he was practicing rope tricks.

"Oh, no!" he realized his forgetfulness as we approached. "I plumb forgot. Y'know, I got so wrapped up in this thing (the rope) that I just kept on working."

Will Rogers, Jr., former congressman, Army officer and newspaper publisher, blushed a bright crimson and awkwardly dangled his arms about his sides. It was frightening. He looked, acted and sounded too much like his dad.

He apparently noted my jaw which by this time was lying loosely around my knees. "I don't look that much like dad," he said, "here's a picture."

As I looked at the color portrait, I was even more convinced, but Bill insisted the noses were slightly different. Well, he should know. But the only makeup he'll wear in the film is a slight bit of grey at the temples for the last scenes.

He twirled the rope deftly and commented, "this is incredibly difficult. Dad was the best." On Bill's insistence, much roping will be included in the film. He's been a pretty good roper all his life, but knows he can never attain the finesse Will had. "I hope I do him justice," he said.

Will Rogers, Sr.

Will Rogers, Jr.

Will Rogers, Jr., is not an actor. Ten years ago the Rogers family agreed to let the studio make the film. During that time all the aforementioned actors were asked to portray Will. They knew they couldn't do justice to the part.

Bill, too, was scared. However he had an easy excuse. First, he was busy in Washington, then he enlisted and after the war, he was busy with his weekly newspaper.

Finally, director Mike Curtiz talked him into doing it. "I'm doing it all on Mike's say so," is Bill's admission. Curtiz is a fortunate choice for director. He was a close pal of Will's—played polo with him and was a friend of the family.

"Why, I've never acted in my life," Bill continued. "Cept maybe in high school of college. I just roped or sang. I never spoke anybody else's lines."

"You ought to hear me," he laughed. "They say I sound too sing-songy. Brother, you should hear some of that sing-songy talk I heard in Congress! Yeah, they really had to talk me into this."

There will be no attempt to force Bill to assume the famous Rogers attitudes. "If some of my father's mannerisms come out that's fine," he chided deeply. "And that's what a lot of people say."

However, the film will be more authentic than most film biographies. Too many of us remember so much of his life, his actions, his famous radio programs and philosophy to toy with this story.

The emphasis in the film life, according to Bill will be placed on his pro-aviation activities, drought relief speeches, national tours, and the way he constantly bawled out "city slickers."

The important role played by Betty Rogers, and the three children will also be depicted. Jane Wyman plays Mrs. Rogers.

It is a tough role for a beginner. A hero portrayal is difficult enough. However, in this one there are no battles to be fought, cities to be founded, formulae to be discovered or games to be won. This is a story of a man who talked himself into the hearts of a nation. And Bill has little to do but talk—and rope.

Will once said, of himself: "I'm just an old country boy in a big town trying to get along. I have been eating pretty regular and the reason I have been is because I have stayed an old country boy." As his close friend, Fred Stone, said: "Will Rogers remained unconfused in a world of confusion."

"Remember," Bill added for insurance, "they just talked me into doing this." He walked away, twirling his rope and mumbled something about "this is incredibly difficult. . . ."

Reds Hail Arms Drive As Success

Hong Kong, (AP)—Red China's year-long public donation campaign for arms to use in Korea is being hailed by the Communists as a huge success, but western military observers are skeptical of what Russia will let the Chinese have for their money.

The official Peiping People's Daily newly received here says the campaign which began in January, 1951, has produced the equivalent of 251 million dollars, U. S., and will purchase 3,300 fighter planes costing $75,000 each.

Military men in this British colony say the very best the Reds can get for that kind of money probably is the old-fashioned Yak fighter, a propeller-driven job. This is the World War Two Russian type that the Americans quickly knocked out of the skies at the beginning of the Korean war.

The arms subscription campaign began with much fanfare when the Chinese were first hurried back in Korea. Peiping claims it was pressed in every hamlet and city of the country to purchase artillery, planes and tanks to "throw

Purged Czech Reds Expected To Face Trial

Vienna, Austria (AP)—Vienna reports said yesterday Rudolf Slansky and a score of other purged Czech Communist "traitors" recently were taken to Moscow and there forced to "confess" for a possible mass trial.

The reports, from usually well-informed western sources, speculated the Russians had supervised the cross-examinations and had laid the groundwork for a coming trial. The group was returned to Prague about a week ago, the informants asserted.

There have been increasing indications that the Czech Communist regime is planning a mass trial which may, according to some diplomatic expectations, be as great as the Moscow trials of 1936. The Czechoslovak press appears to be in the process of preparing the Czech people psychologically for such a trial.

The Czech public is being told that the purged Communists were members of a "Trotskyite-Zionist" conspiracy aimed to overthrow the present regime with the support of the western powers.

Many of the group have been under arrest for months. The purge of "traitorous" elements first got under way in late 1949. It reached its high point in late 1951 when Rudolf Slansky, Jewish secretary-general of the Czech Communist party, was cut down.

Scores of top party and government officials were arrested or ousted and the purge reached down to the lowest levels of the party, eliminating hundreds of officials whose loyalty the regime considered doubtful.

Many were of Jewish origin. The Communist press has been accusing the "Zionists" of partial responsibility for Czechoslovakia's present economic woes.

According to the Vienna newspaper Arbeiterzeitung, the scores of top officials arrested include three Cabinet ministers, seven members of the Slovak Provincial Diet, nine assistant ministers and department heads, six generals and 12 Communist party regional bosses. Twenty members—or almost a quarter—of the central committee of the Communist party also are said to have been arrested.

Game Violators Tracked By Air

Helena, Mont. (AP)—Deputy Game Warden William E. Du Beau is a man whose eyesight is so sharp that he can look out of an airplane and tell the difference between deer and human tracks.

He spotted two sets of human tracks near those of a deer and flying lower, he followed the trail and soon saw two men trying to hide a deer carcass under a tree.

The game warden then flew to Ft. Peck, got a camera, flew back and took a picture of the two men and their illegal quarry. One hunter was arrested as he came out of the underbrush. The other got away.

The American aggressors in Korea into the sea."

Public enthusiasm was asserted to be so great that many laborers and peasants subscribed more than they could afford and had to be urged to take it easier.

Now, in what appears to be the final accounting, the People's Daily refers only to fighter planes. Bombers and other heavy arms are not mentioned.

Western observers here say the omission may mean that Russia has decided not to waste any more military material in Korea, even though the Chinese pay for it.

Mechanical Heart Kept Man Alive

Philadelphia (AP)—A mechanical heart kept a man alive for an hour and a half while surgeons operated on the patient's own heart, doctors disclosed.

It was one of the few surgical attempts in medical history, one doctor said. And it was the only time, he added, that a machine has taken over the duties of the heart for so long a time.

The operation took place Friday at Pennsylvania hospital. Although the heart machine itself was successful during the operation, the patient later died because of a defect in his own heart.

The patient was Peter Durning, a 41-year-old steelworker of Bethlehem, Pa.

Here's the story hospital spokesmen told of the amazing operation:

It was performed by a team of nine doctors from Jefferson hospital, the hospital of the University of Pennsylvania and Pennsylvania hospital.

The patient's own heart, which functioned partially throughout the surgery, resumed full operation after the mechanical device was removed. But the operation disclosed that the patient suffered from a malformation that could not be corrected by surgery.

Durning died when his own diseased heart failed three hours after the machine was disconnected.

The mechanical heart is composed of an electric motor that rotates on two rollers which move rhythmically against rubber tubes holding the blood. As the rollers move they press the tubes against a curved piece of metal pulsing the blood into plastic tubes that are connected to veins near the heart.

The entire mechanism is three feet high, two and a half feet long and a foot deep.

500 Take Part In CAP Drill

Allentown (AP)—It was a tough one.

That was the comment yesterday of Col. Philip Neuweller of Allentown, who was in charge of the Civil Air patrol's weekend Civil Defense maneuvers in the snow-covered mountains of north-eastern Pennsylvania.

He said, however, that the drill turned out to be "completely successful" and he expects a high rating from Air Force officials who will grade the exercise.

More than 500 men were involved in the drills which consisted mostly in spotting downed flyers and bringing them out by ground rescue teams.

A heavy weekend snowfall made the mission doubly hazardous, Neuweller said.

Four parachutists from the Fifth Air Rescue squadron, Westover, Mass., bailed out of planes in various parts of the area.

Mundt Demands Navy State Police On Shipments To Red China Before War

Washington, (AP)—Senator Mundt (R-SD) demanded yesterday that the Navy say whether it condoned the shipment of war materials to Communist China just before the Korean war.

Mundt called for a reply by Tuesday or Wednesday, the days on which the Senate investigations subcommittee with which he serves plans to question corruption cleanup boss Newbold Morris about his role in trading to Red China.

There was no immediate comment from the Navy yesterday.

David R. Jarvis, New York shipping agent whose firm handled the chartering of two U.S. flag tankers which carried oil from Communist Romania to Red China in 1949 and 1950, told the subcommittee Friday that Navy Intelligence approved the arrangement.

He said Naval Intelligence and the Central Intelligence agency (CIA) questioned crew members after the voyages and assured him "they were getting more information from us than anyone else" about doings behind the Iron Curtain.

Mundt made public a letter to Secretary of the Navy Kimball contending that if Jarvis' statements are true "this is a case of Pearl Harborism at its worst."

The senator quoted to Kimball a letter written Oct. 4, 1949, by then secretary of defense, Louis A. Johnson, protesting that the oil shipments were "a definite threat to the national security of the United States."

"Naturally," Mundt wrote, "it came as a distinct shock to our committee to hear Mr. Jarvis testify under oath that, in substance, U.S. Naval Intelligence approved this traffic in war supplies with Communist China in 1949."

He asked Kimball to state whether the Navy did look "with favor" on the traffic, and to file a copy of its "exact policy" on such trade at that time.

Bodies Of Four Fliers Recovered

Kleine Scheidegg, Switzerland,

(AP)—Swiss mountain guides yesterday brought the bodies of four American flyers down from the wreck of the U.S. Air Force C-47 which crashed into the north wall of the Jungfrau Massif Friday.

Four other bodies could not be found and it may be a month before they can be recovered, officials of the Swiss Air Rescue service said. The plane loosed an avalanche as it crashed into the mountain and it is believed the other bodies and parts of the plane may be buried under many feet of snow.

Smith Calls For Acheson Dismissal

Washington (AP)—Rep. Lawrence H. Smith (R-Wisc), called anew yesterday for the dismissal of Secretary of State Acheson, citing as one reason the secretary's action in the case of O. Edmund Clubb.

Clubb is the former director of the State department's Chinese Affairs office who recently retired after the department announced that he had been cleared for loyalty and security.

Acheson later told a March 5 news conference that he had reversed a finding of the department's Loyalty-Security board and ordered Clubb reinstated. He denied there was any prior agreement that Clubb would retire on an annual pension of $5,800.

Acheson said he personally did not hear Clubb's appeal from an adverse report of the Loyalty-Security board. He said a trusted department official did so and recommended the reversal, which he then approved. He added that he took full personal responsibility.

Nathaniel Davis, who retired last July as minister to Hungary, said early yesterday that he was the man who recommended that Acheson reverse the board's finding that Clubb was a poor security risk.

Davis, in a telephone interview from his home in Glens Falls, N. Y., told the Associated Press he spent three or four weeks in Washington studying the case in January and February. He then questioned Clubb at a one-day hearing, he said, and reported to Acheson in early February.

"I came to the conclusion that he (Clubb) was not a security risk and so recommended that the finding of the board be reversed," Davis said.

Clubb's clearance was announced Feb. 11 and he resigned the same day, saying the investigation had seriously damaged his career prospects.

Senator McCarthy (R-Wisc) brought Davis' name into the case Saturday night in a speech at Minneapolis.

McCarthy said Davis' "service in this case consisted largely of walking into Acheson's office and signing an order." Lincoln White, a State department press officer, commented that was a "typical McCarthy statement—the kind he's noted for."

McCarthy for more than two years has been carrying on a campaign against Acheson and what the senator calls Communist influences in the State department.

President Truman has said repeatedly he has no intention of asking Acheson to resign or accepting a resignation if the secretary proffers one.

New Television Tuning Gadget

New York (AP)—When new television stations come on the air in the ultra high frequencies, a possibility within the next year, present day receivers will require an added gadget to tune them in.

This will consist of a small box with extra tuning dial which can be attached easily to the receiver and which will increase the tuning range into the higher frequencies. Already engineers have worked out satisfactory units for this purpose.

French Government Battles Drop In Franc Value Even As People Deal In Dollars

Editor's Note: Following is the nineteenth in a series of reports from Britain and Europe by Ruth Haller Ottaway, mother of James H. Ottaway, publisher of The Daily Record. The writer is an experienced journalist and traveler and her reports from abroad in recent years have received a favorable reception by Record readers.

By Ruth Haller Ottaway

Paris—The half-knowledge conveyed in generalizations is dangerous. So we have touched somewhat skittishly upon the decline of the franc and doubling prices in France. But the sudden soaring from the official 350 francs to the dollar to almost 500 on the black market just as the Government is seeking ways of raising its share for the European Defense Army has caused so much excitement that we are impelled to discuss it. Former Prime Minister Faure and his Cabinet have fallen on the issue of a 15% rise in taxes,

Cottontail's Visit Slated For Saturday

a 10% rise having been voted down some time ago. Monsieur Faure was bitter about the low valuation of the franc by other countries, but the French the m e l v e s seem to be dealing in dollars. Corruption in high places winked at by the Government is said to be the crux of the matter. Yes, we suffer with that plague too, but we are not good at winking.

A well-known English tailor, in Paris many years, was in despair about the restriction upon imports of English woolsens. "The trouble is," he said to us, "we now have to go to Government officials for permits, and we will have to pay a fat sum to those fellows or we will have no permits. It's awful. We can't pull out of this inflation. What good is it to have the Cabinet fall? The same ministers just change stools and go on forgetting their promises. They are for themselves, not for France."

Item: When we asked at the hotel desk about the vote on defense, the man said, "Who cares what they do in that snake-nest?" Shocked? Yes, but it is only a French version of our own vitriolic talk. We are disillusioned to the point of doing something, the French to the point of doing nothing.

We read of one well-adjusted Frenchman who can eat at home for 355 francs a day ($1.02 per person) and of another who said, "How can anyone think of eating breakfast, luncheon, tea and dinner? Goodness! Is he a millionaire to be able to eat more than one meal a day in Paris? The fact is that we are astonished at the many French people who dine at expensive restaurants. But we have also seen threadbare professors and workers dining only on a small fish and "petit pois".

With all of its money troubles, Paris announces that it will provide its 83,000 "economically weak" with a litre of wine a day. Wine, not bread, apparently is the staff of life for a Frenchman!

With these straws in the wind pointing in opposite directions, we must make no sweeping, derogatory conclusion about France. She is fighting to avoid economic crisis along with the rest of the world.

In a letter to the Continental Daily Mail signed "Non-Communist Frenchman" are some good ideas on stopping the decline of the franc:

One—Make it illegal to hoard gold. The Government should buy up all the gold at the current market rate. As France has the largest amount of gold among its citizens and the least among the governments, this should bring up the prestige of the franc.

Two—Offer tourists the open market rate for their national currencies. Thus the dollars would come to the Government instead of to black marketeers.

Three—Heavier taxes on "home consumption wines". If other countries can get along with H2O (water), I don't see why we can't. Decrease and supervise more carefully the pensions given. I hear that practically all the Corsicans are on a pension, legally or by hook or crook.

Four—Fire a few more unnecessary "functionnaires".

Five—Stop subsidizing opera. (1) Last item: The cost of sitting in a public chair in the parks of Paris has gone up to 12 francs for ordinary chairs and 20 francs for arm-chairs. What! No more arm-chair philosophers to tell the Government what to do?
